Bus Stop

The system of bus shelters and info-pillars meet, in an exemplary fashion, the demands on design in the public space. With its light and transparent structure it is considerate of an existing cityscape and is therefore able to function in all urban contexts, at the same time as clean lines and the distinct, recognisable form express a strong identity.

The design is detailed and overall, for example in the inlaid rubber on the seat area of the steel bench.

Accessibility for the user is reflected both in the physical separation of shelter and info-stand, which leaves no doubt as to where the information about busses is located.
