Facit io

Facit io is a flexible and intelligent system of office furnishings consisting of relatively few components. The components can be combined to create innumerable configurations that accommodate the needs of both open plan and cellular office designs.

All components in the system permit the creation of an ergonomically correct workstation. The backbone of Facit io is a service wall element that houses and conceals almost every cabling need, thus facilitating individual control of each workstation. Pinboards, storage units and computer screens are just some of the elements, that can be mounted onto the Facit io service walls.

The design of the desktop means a flexible and expedient utilization of space. The desktops are organically formed, ergonomically determined and adjustable in height.
